Key Insights

Distribution of Shows vs. Movies

- Movies dominate the dataset, significantly outnumbering shows.
- Shows are relatively fewer, indicating either lower production or limited data availability.
Top 10 Most Popular Movies

The chart shows that "All the Old Knives" is the most popular movie, standing out significantly from the rest. There's also a noticeable gap between the top few movies and the others, indicating that only a handful dominate in popularity.
Top 10 Most Popular Movies

The chart shows that "Harina" is significantly more popular than the other shows, with a big gap in popularity. Shows like "Suits" and "Better Call Saul" also have strong fan followings. This suggests that crime and legal dramas continue to attract a large audience, while other genres have a more balanced viewership.

Top 10 Most Common Genres in Movies & Shows

The chart shows that drama and comedy are the most common genres, meaning they dominate the entertainment industry. This suggests that audiences have a strong preference for emotional storytelling and humor.

5 Top 10 Production Countries

Top 10 Content Producing Countries

The chart shows that the US is the biggest producer of content by a huge margin, followed by India and the UK. This suggests that most movies and shows come from a few dominant regions, which could influence global entertainment trends and audience preferences.